

2020-2021 Support for a Grant-Funded Program for Open Textbooks at the UCs

WHEREAS, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that the price of textbooks has risen 88 percent between 2006 and 2016 in the US<sup>1</sup>; and,

WHEREAS, setting aside over $1,300 for textbooks and material fees each year is a financial burden many UCLA students cannot afford<sup>2</sup>; and,

WHEREAS, 65 percent of students report not buying a textbook required for a course because of its price even if they were concerned that their grade would suffer as a result<sup>3</sup>; and,

WHEREAS, open textbooks, which are free to read and share under an open copyright license, can combat the exponential rise of textbook prices; and,

WHEREAS, 368 UC professors have signed on in support of open textbook use; and,

WHEREAS, UCLA Libraries' Affordable Course Materials Initiative has decreased the cost of course materials at UCLA for thousands of students by providing awards for faculty who transition to low-cost course materials<sup>4</sup>; and,

WHEREAS, many other higher-education systems, including the California Community Colleges, the California State Universities, and the State Universities of New York have launched their own programs to encourage the use of open textbooks, making information readily accessible for all students and providing students and their families with financial relief<sup>5</sup><sup>[6]</sup>; and,

WHEREAS, the efforts of colleges to invest in open educational resources have saved students millions of dollars, helped improve academic performance of students, and are cost-efficient for the institutions themselves<sup>7</sup>; and,
